

Just like Rick Ross, every day you're hustlin'. Well, most of the time, anyway. You know...mostly at work. But what about on your way to work, home from work, out walking the dog, heading home from yoga class, or strolling to the farmer's market on a Sunday morning? Gigwalk lets you turn formerly unproductive jaunts into cold, hard deposits into your PayPal account, by completing "gigs" with the help of your smartphone.

The 2-year-old app and service started out iOS only, but on Thursday Gigwalk launched an Android app as well, vastly increasing its pool of potential Gigwalkers. The company expects the free Android app to double its user base, currently at 340,000 workers.