

A Massive Need for Our Education

Think back to your days in school. Do you remember taking any classes that taught you how to save and manage your money? Do you remember classes that taught you to invest in the markets and generate income from trading? What about improving your credit score or how to buy insurance?

The answer is almost always "no" and yet, knowing how to manage each of these opportunities has an impact on our quality of life.