

Our objective is to develop and bring to market the most advanced products for medical diagnostics and optical imaging to allow questions to be addressed at the molecular and cellular level. We commit ourselves to the highest standards of scientific rigor, ethics, innovation and generosity towards all. At the core of our effort is a collective determination to provide hope for a better life for patients facing difficult battles with debilitating diseases such as cancer.