

We were started by people who looked at how international money transfer worked and thought there has to be a better way.

And all done online to fit in seamlessly with how we live today. On an individual basis this is clearly great for the people and families sending money, but scale this all up to the size of a community, or even a country, and the cumulative effect could be stunning.

We might just be helping people build a better world.