

Life is an amazing technology with the potential to transform our world. Unfortunately the fundamental tools of biotechnology have been less than accessible to those who want to do so: biohackers, students, scientists on a budget, those with the clearest of needs but limited capital or know-how, and the creatives and inventors who imagine new ways of tackling old problems.

We make tools for these kinds of people.